Solon Would Put Dry Body on Grill

CONGRESS PROBE OF ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE IS PLAN

Representative Tinkham To Charge Violation of Federal Campaign Fund Law in Bill.

SOLON WILL CLAIM CORRUPT PRACTICES

"Dry" Body Has "Exercised Insidious Influence on Executive Bureau" To Be One Assertion.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, November 25.—Investigation of the activities of the Anti-Saloon league by a special house committee will be sought by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, who announced today he had drafted a resolution calling for an inquiry.

Mr. Tinkham charges in his resolution that the league has "openly and flagrantly" violated the federal campaign contributions law and the corrupt practices laws of various states; has attempted to influence federal judicial appointments; has denounced judicial officers and decisions; has attempted to influence the president in his appointments of heads of departments, and "actually exercised its insidious influence successfully upon a bureau of an executive department" to an extent that even appointments of persons in the service of the bureau are made "with the sanction and approval" of the Anti-Saloon league.

Without a public accounting, the league, Mr. Tinkham asserts, has raised and expended "vast sums of money to influence public opinion," directly to control elections and to pay professional organizers and lobbyists throughout the United States, and particularly in Washington.

BUYS HER COFFIN AND SHROUD; GOES TO LIVE ON ALMS

Pomero, Ohio, November 25.—After investing her savings with an undertaker to make sure that she would not be buried in the officers' field, Mrs. Caroline Deeds, 75, and blind, today became an inmate of the county infirmary.

Expecting to take up her residence in the infirmary, Mrs. Deeds, who lived alone for years in a cottage here, accompanied by a friend to the undertaker's establishment yesterday and paid for a casket, steel vault, a burial dress and the cost of digging the grave.

"Where shall I have this outfit delivered?" the undertaker asked.

"Just keep it until it is called for," Mrs. Deeds replied. "It is for myself."

"PAYING GUESTS" HELP PAY HIGH RENT

Some thrifty families take well-bred people into their homes as "paying guests." This enables them to have congenial company in the house and at the same time add to the family income.

But, whether you call them "paying guests" or "boarders," you'll find the best of them read The Constitution, and to reach Constitution readers you must advertise in The Constitution.

A small advertisement under the heading of "Rooms for Rent" will attract your guests' attention.

Who Slew Lehman Is Double Puzzle Of Perfect Cases

Wife of Walter Bockelman Accuses Mate of Murder — His Sweetie "Confesses."

BUT MALM CLAIMS CRIME FOR HIS SPOUSE

Now Chicago Police Face Necessity of Smashing One Case To Save Someone From Chair.

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER.
Chicago, November 25.—Who killed Edward Lehman?

The echo of two separate sets of confessions, two sets of identifications, a jumble of contradictory circumstantial evidence, and an amazing situation wherein a woman accuses her husband and another husband accuses his wife of this murder, an answer, "Who?"

Whether to believe the stories of the wife and sweetheart of Walter Bockelman, which were once believed certain to send Bockelman to the gallows, or the confession of Otto Malm, who claims his wife committed the crime, is the question to be solved by the police.

The authorities thought their case against Bockelman was about the clearest and most convincing in the records of the detective bureau. Lehman, a young night watchman, was shot early on Sunday morning, November 5, as he interrupted a man and girl who were trying to break into a storehouse, and these were some of the things that counted against Bockelman.

The Bockelman Case.
Lehman was declared to have accused Bockelman in his dying breath, Albert Stenwedel, Lehman's companion, identified Bockelman as the murderer.

Mrs. Bockelman, claiming to have been beaten and kicked around the house by her husband for two or three years, denied his claim that he had been home at the time of the murder, and expressed the hope that he would hang.

Ethel Beck, Bockelman's 18-year-old sweetheart, hearing of Mrs. Bockelman's admission, broke down and confessed that Bockelman had shot Lehman and that she had been with him at the time. She repudiated this story the next day.

Malm Claims Crime.
With all this evidence and much more in its possession, the county grand jury lost no time in indicting

Soviet in Plea To Science Asks

Savants for Aid

Trotzky Urges Chemists To Provide for Gases To Use in Future Wars.

Moscow, November 25.—The all-Russian Union of Scientists, holding its first congress since the revolution, has been asked by soviet leaders to let bygones be bygones and come to the aid of Russia economically and for the benefit of military defense in the future. About one hundred delegates, representing 8,000 scientific men throughout Russia, attended the congress.

"Let us forget the bitterness of the past and cooperate in the re-establishment of the country," said M. Zmorieff, one of the soviet leaders, in an address to the delegates. War Minister Trotzky sent a letter asking the scientists to help safeguard the borders against Russia's enemies.

The chemists, he wrote, should provide gases and salt-gases for the chemical warfare, which form a question of life or death in the sphere of defense. He also asked for the scientific and technical development of aviation, industry and railways.

"Until inter-human relations are cleared of war," he concluded, "we shall be compelled to pave our way into the future by blood. We wish and will fight well, and we firmly believe we can count on the full support of the scientific mind."

GARRETT BRANDS TARIFF AS SPAWN OF GREAT GREED

Candidate for Re-election as Minority Floor Leader Issues Hot Statement.

CALLS ATTENTION TO PARTY RECORDS

Declares Democrats in Congress Will Support Four-Square Policy for Tax Cuts.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, November 25.—Outing in a general way his views on taxation Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, who is expected to again be democratic leader in the house, declared in a statement today that the question should be approached by congress without show of partisanship.

"Let's be done," he said, "with partisanship in dealing with the twin question of revenue and finance, except as to the present iniquitous high tariff which constantly is hoodwinking the high cost of living and breeding countless profiteers. The tariff will continue in politics as long as greed insists on dictating extortionate and unconscionable high rates."

Mr. Garrett's statement was issued after he had conferred with various democratic leaders in the house, including Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, who will represent the Fourth Tennessee district in the house during the sixteenth congress.

Referring to Secretary Mellon's tax reduction proposals, Mr. Garrett said:

Compares Party Records.
"A vast amount of misleading propaganda already has been put out in regard to the tax situation that is calculated to serve just the opposite purpose from that intended. A brief glance at the tax record of the two political parties since 1918 offers the best assurance of their respective policies."

Referring to the coming session, in February, 1919, he said: "The republican suggestion of the democratic administration and congress, normal income tax rates were reduced from 12 and 6 per cent to 8 and 4 per cent, respectively, and reductions were made in excess profits taxes. The estimated reductions of war taxes at this time were $2,000,000,000. During the two years that followed the democratic president and his secretaries of the treasury constantly urged the second important step towards normal taxation, but the republican congress refused to budge an inch in that direction prior to March 4, 1921."

Confusion Results.
"During the attempted, but rather abortive, internal revenue tax revision of 1921 under republican leadership, politics, blocs, factions and cliques were allowed to be injected, with the unfortunate results well known. This legislative task was so handled as to cause some phases of tax conditions, particularly surtaxes, to become hopelessly involved in controversy, and controversy and factionalism were only furthered by dealing with the most gradual manner."

"The earned and unearned income

Two Portias Sit as Judges

ONE USES LECTURE; THE OTHER, 30 DAYS
Quality of Mercy Differs

New York, November 25.—The old refrain "have a heart" was sung to a new tune today in Magistrate Heilperin's court. The magistrate complained that he was getting tired of sentencing drunken men to jail when it made their wives suffer, so he invited the wives of two offenders to mount the bench, pronounce the verdict and pass the sentence, if any, and do the least possible injury to themselves.

First to face his wife was Tim Bannan, who caused a row in a restaurant by notifying the manager he had no money, but not, however, until he had eaten. Mrs. "Tim" as he pleaded to her, considering that his escapades were rare, squeezed sufficient balm for herself out of a lecture on a husband's duty to his wife and the community.

Ell Gorman, his eating companion, had to pitch his song in a different key, for it was an old one to Mrs. Gorman's ears.

"Bill," she said as she donned the

Since there is no question of the ability of the republicans to organize both houses, interest in organization matters centers on the leadership fight on the majority side in the house and the selection of a republican candidate for president pro tem of the senate.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, is expected to decide early this week whether he will ask re-election as president pro tem or relinquish that job to retain the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee.

Should he give up the presidency, Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican whip, may succeed to that place.

Although Speaker Gillett may have some opposition at the republican house conference next Saturday his reelection is regarded generally as almost a certainty. The real contest among the majority is over the leadership to which Longworth, of Ohio, and Graham, of Illinois, aspire.

The Minority Ticket.
The democrats in both the house and senate will put full tickets in the field. Garrett, of Tennessee, will be the minority candidate for speaker and upon the election of Gillett he automatically will become the minority leader. Oldfield, of Arkansas, very probably will be returned as democratic whip.

Senate democrats are expected to select Robinson, of Arkansas, as their leader, and Pittman, of Nevada, as their candidate for president pro tem. While the leaders of the two major parties are laying their final plans, republican-progressive and the independents of the house and senate will continue their conferences. The progressive group in the house will go into the republican conference and launch their fight for a liberalization of the house rules and more representation on committees. Leaders of this group have stated their intention to support Cooper, of Wisconsin, for speaker and thus bring about delay in the organization of the house, unless their demands are complied with.

Two Progressive Blocs.
Republican progressives and Minnesota farmer-labor senators are to resume their conference early this week for discussion and legislation of kindred matters, but the working out of a definite program may await the

Woman Who Cut Neighbor in Duel Surrenders Self

Mrs. Helene Schuyler, Held by Police, Claims Self Defense.

Mrs. Helen Schuyler, 26, of 275 South Whiteford avenue, surrendered to police officials Sunday night and is held without bond on charges of cutting and probably fatally wounding Mrs. Jessie Jackson, 271 South Whiteford, in a fight last Friday night. She gave herself up to officers after learning that her victim's condition was grave and that the police had been ordered to re-arrest her.

Mrs. Jackson was cut about the face and head in a fight Friday night with Mrs. Schuyler, who claims that she cut in self defense and only after Mrs. Jackson had struck her several times on the head with a pair of brass knuckles. She exhibited several bad scalp wounds Sunday in support of her contention.

Woman Sent to Home.
The two women were arrested by police officers late Friday night and taken to Grady hospital where their wounds were dressed. Mrs. Schuyler went home immediately afterwards and Mrs. Jackson was able to return to her home Saturday. Charges of

Albert Assumes Mantle Dropped By Stresemann

If Reichstag Rejects New Cabinet, Ebert and Von Seeckt Will Dissolve That Body.

NEW CHANCELLOR HAS RECORD IN U. S.

It Was His Little Black Bag, Seized by Secret Service, That Ousted Von Bernstorff.

BY FERDINAND JAHN.
Berlin, November 25.—Dr. Heinrich Albert, former minister of the treasury and state secretary at the chancellery, has accepted President Ebert's appointment as chancellor to succeed Gustav Stresemann.

It is expected that Heinrich Brauns, minister of labor in the Stresemann cabinet, and Otto Gessler, Stresemann's minister of the reichswelt, will be retained in the new cabinet. Dr. Jarres, ex-mayor of Duisburg, is spoken of as a possible minister of the interior.

If Reichstag Rejects New Cabinet, Ebert and Von Seeckt Will Dissolve That Body.

NEW CHANCELLOR HAS RECORD IN U. S.

It Was His Little Black Bag, Seized by Secret Service, That Ousted Von Bernstorff.

BY FERDINAND JAHN.
Berlin, November 25.—Dr. Heinrich Albert, former minister of the treasury and state secretary at the chancellery, has accepted President Ebert's appointment as chancellor to succeed Gustav Stresemann.

It is expected that Heinrich Brauns, minister of labor in the Stresemann cabinet, and Otto Gessler, Stresemann's minister of the reichswelt, will be retained in the new cabinet. Dr. Jarres, ex-mayor of Duisburg, is spoken of as a possible minister of the interior.

President Ebert and General von Seeckt, German dictator, have agreed that in the event Albert's cabinet is not approved by the reichstag, the reichstag will be dissolved.

Albert plans to retain most of Stresemann's cabinet, and it is declared that he will select Von Hintze or Bockendorff-Rantau, the German ambassador to Russia, as foreign minister.

Stresemann Declines Place.
Ex-Chancellor Stresemann has declined the post of foreign minister in the new government.

Albert is well known in America, having been in charge of the German exhibit at the St. Louis fair. He later served as business attaché at the German embassy in Washington.

He will be recalled still more vividly in America for an espionage incident in which he figured while acting as aid to Von Bernstorff. The German embassy staff fell under suspicion, and an American secret service man tracked Albert for several weeks, carrying a little black satchel similar to one Albert always carried.

Career Ended.
One day, in a crowded elevated car in New York, the agent exchanged the bags, picking up Albert's, which had lain on the floor between his feet.

The bag contained papers of a damaging character, and Albert's activities in America terminated soon after the incident.

Albert is now 49 years old. He was born in Magdeburg, and studied law, but has devoted his life to a governmental career.

Albert had been asked previously to form a government to succeed the Stresemann regime. President Ebert, in his second letter to Albert, announcing his selection to form a government, wrote:

Ebert in Letter.
"My deliberations on the formation of a cabinet have, so far, convinced me that it is impossible at the present time to form a coalition on a sufficient parliamentary basis."

"The situation, however, is so ex-

News Outside the Door.

Pioneer settlers north and south grazed their feast birds with the noblest of game birds, the wild turkey. Mexican turkeys, long domesticated by Indians, taken to Europe in the sixteenth century, returned to American barnyards as the sacrificial victim of Thanksgiving day. Thanksgiving dinner is a relic of ancient religious sacrifice of animals to the gods. Shocked gentle souls should remember there is a deep meaning in the annual slaying of beautiful birds to make an American holiday. It makes us remember that all animate and vegetable life sacrifices itself that something else may prosper, that the web of life spun by the Creator may go on.

Wild turkeys were once plentiful in Ontario, Dakota, and New England. Their remnants now sink in the wild spots from Central Pennsylvania and Virginia to the plains and gulf. Our grand children will never see a wild turkey in their old age.

Writing in 1843 Rev. Mr. Linsley said that the last wild turkey he had heard of in New England had been found in deep snow on Totoket mountain, Northford, Conn., thirty years before.

RUMMY BILL AND $100,000 IN CASH SNAGGED AT SEA

U. S. Coast Guards Seize British Schooner Tomako and Crew Six Miles Out.

200 CASES OF BOOZE FOUND ON BOARD

Smuggler Had Already Sold 4,000 Cases of Whisky — Prisoners To Plead High Seas Law.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, November 25.—The British auxiliary schooner Tomako, most adventurous of all the rum carrying craft on the Atlantic, fell into the hands of coast guards early today after a sharp engagement six miles off Seabright, N. J. In her hold was found William "Rummy Bill" McCoy, characterized by the government as the "rum smuggler king."

The coast guard cutters Seneca and Lexington, operating on information furnished by treasury department special agents that the Tomako was off Seabright, lying in close to dispatch of 200 cases of whisky—all that remained of a 4,200-case cargo shipped recently in the Bahamas—proceeded to Sandy Hook long before daybreak.

Schooner Is Sighted.
As dawn broke the Lexington sighted the schooner, its two sticks standing over the top of an early morning haze, and sent a radio message to the Seneca to proceed. When the cutters were a short distance away, a lookout aboard the schooner announced their approach. Immediately the little vessel, sea anchor was towed, her auxiliary engine began thrashing and she was scampering to sea.

But the speed of the little vessel, which had taken part in many of the largest rum carrying expeditions from the Bahamas, according to government agents, could not match that of the cutters and in less than a quarter of an hour they were close upon her heels.

"Aho! schooner," shouted the commander of the speedy Lexington. "Heave to there you little devil or there'll be trouble."

"Heave to, yeec!" came the answering shout from the schooner's stern. "Whaddie think yer doin' chasin' a British boat outside the three-mile limit?"

"Bring her around or we'll blow you clean down to Nassau," the coast guard warned.

Lexington Opens Fire.
No heed was paid to this threat, and a shot from the three-inch gun on the Lexington whistled across the Tomako's bow. Its only effect was to increase the schooner's speed. Then the Seneca sent another shot whizzing by the main mast. The cutters were almost upon her then and the schooner's captain brought her about.

A party of five from the cutter was dispatched in a small boat to board the schooner. As they climbed over the side, several members of the crew attempted to push them back and a lively fist fight ensued, during which at least three members of the schooner's crew got bloody noses and sore heads.

Rounded up, the crew of eight, including the schooner's master, George Downey, were sent aboard the Lexington. Downey declared he was not liable to seizure as the 12-mile treaty between Great Britain and the United McCoy Found in Hold.

 The schooner carrying boats not become effective.
 The schooner, McCoy, was found in the hold of the schooner, McCoy, crouching among the remaining 200 cases of the 4,200-case cargo. In his pockets were found bank notes for $60,000 and in the cabin safe were $30,000 more. All this, McCoy said, had been received from smugglers of New Jersey that visited his ship on Rum Row.
 "I'm within my rights outside the 3-mile limit; and all the customs agents and prohibition agents and reformers in the United States can go hang for I'll be at them," McCoy is alleged to have said as he left the schooner.

Pockets Well Filled.
 The Tomako was towed to the battery and her crew and McCoy, who is said to be under federal indictments for violation of the prohibition laws, were placed in jail. He has been sought for five months by treasury department agents from Daytona, Fla., to Portland, Maine.
 All members of the Tomako's crew had been given their share of the cargo profits and had dollar-filled pockets when taken to the barge office. There were several youngsters among them who declared that the rum-carrying business was the most remunerative as well as adventurous calling they could think of.
 All are being held for examination tomorrow.

Alleged Leader Of Auto Thieves Seized in West

Macon, Ga., November 25.—It was announced at the office of Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett tonight that Grover Jones, wanted here in connection with the theft of several automobiles, was arrested today in Redwood, Cal. Sheriff's deputies are preparing to leave for the west.
 The solicitor charges that Jones was at the head of a "ring" engaged in the theft of cars, which was broken up last July with Jones' arrest. He gave bond and a few days later fled.

IMPRISONED PRIEST WILL BE RELEASED

Moscow, November 25.—Archbishop Zepiak, imprisoned by the soviet, possibly will be exchanged or released long before his sentence expires, it was stated today by the commissary of justice, M. Kuraki.
 "Zepiak is being well looked after," he said, "and no complaints have reached me from any quarters. Of course his age makes prison life irksome, and we are waiting for the possibility of effecting his exchange for prisoners held in another country."
 "Tenspot makes some very queer bids," "Never question his bids," "Huh?" "When he isn't bidding he tells anecdotes."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

COOLIDGE JOINS KIWANIS CLUB

Billings, Mont., November 25.—George E. Snell, of this city, third international vice president of the International Association of Kiwanis Clubs, was officially advised today that President Calvin Coolidge has become an active member of the Kiwanis club at Washington, D. C. The date of his affiliation was November 20, 1921, said Mr. Snell. "This differs from an honorary membership," he continued, "the president paid his money and became an active Kiwanian just the same as anyone else."

Law Tightened In Liquor Cases Thruout State

Washington, November 25.—(Special.)—Juries in both of the federal districts of Georgia, as well as state juries, are showing a greater disposition to be strict on liquor offenders. Prohibition Director E. D. Dismuke has informed Commissioner Hayes.
 "Juries for both of the federal districts of Georgia are gradually improving," Dismuke said. "State juries also show improvement, especially over one and two years ago, when it was impossible to get a true bill against anyone on a whisky charge in certain counties."
 He said that his officers during the past month obtained over 500 convictions in federal and state courts of Georgia for violations of the prohibition laws.

MANY GEORGIANS PLAN TO ATTEND TARIFF CONGRESS

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 25.—(Special.)—Georgia will be well represented at the southern tariff congress here on December 7 and 8. R. L. McMath, of Americus, has been named state chairman for Georgia. The following prominent citizens have accepted membership on the Georgia committee of the Southern Tariff association.
 L. C. Council, Americus; L. C. Mandeville, Carrollton; C. V. Stanton, Waycross; J. C. Brooks, Griffin; R. C. Key, LaGrange; W. F. Staten, Valdosta; J. E. Redwine, Gainesville; W. B. Spann, Jr., Savannah; J. W. Birdsong, West Point; J. S. Slicer, Atlanta; D. N. Harvey, Monticello; Jesse B. Hart, Macon; James S. Peters, Manchester; Joseph S. Calhoun, Cartersville; A. A. Camp, Winder.
 The flexible provision of the present tariff act and southern schedules now under attack before the tariff commission, will come up for discussion at the congress. Delegates representing more than 60 southern industries, hundreds of banks and scores of chambers of commerce will be present when the meeting is called to order by John H. Kirby, of Houston, Texas, president of the association.

Howard Manager Finds Ideal Traffic Officer

NICK CARTER, READY FOR NEW TRAFFIC DUTIES.

Howard Price Kingsmore, managing director of the Howard theater, has chosen the man he wants for the position of Howard traffic guide in front of the Howard theater on Peachtree street.
 The above photograph is of Nick Carter, the newly-appointed traffic officer. Mr. Carter is one of the best men on the Atlanta police force today and has been with the department for the past five years. He has been at Five Points directing traffic from the tower for the past three years. In stature Mr. Carter is a giant of a man. He is six feet three inches tall and weighs 240 pounds. He knows how to handle a delicate situation and does it with the utmost ease.
 The crossing in front of the Howard on Peachtree has long been a hazardous spot. The traffic from the three streets emptying into Peachtree in front of the theater, and traffic coming from the north, bound for the downtown section, congests this "bottle neck" at all hours of the day and night.
 It was Kingsmore's wish that a man could be stationed at this spot at all times, but because of the shortage of men on the police force this could not be done. So he decided to help the city out by developing a broad view of the pros and cons of appeal by the theater council of the United States for an increase of 50 per cent in the present wage duty of 30 cents a bushel.

Candidates Tell Stand in Athens When Questioned

Athens, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Elimination of ward lines in Athens is shied at by most of the ten candidates for municipal office here in answering the League of Women Voters' questionnaire made public today.
 Six out of the ten candidates, all of whom answered the questionnaire in full, are vigorously opposed to doing away with ward lines. These six favor letting the system of electing councilmen remain as it is. However, four of the candidates, while not favoring elimination of ward lines, state they believe election of the councilmen by the city-at-large retaining the feature of ward representation would be better than the prevailing system.
 Eight of the candidates favor consolidation of the county and city health boards, seven favor combining the city and county boards of education and two are uncertain. None of the candidates would oppose a bond election for the schools in 1924, they state, "if the need is urgent and the city's finances permit. One candidate, however, declares that he would oppose a bond issue unless Barberville is provided with a school.
 Only two of the candidates favor the present method of assessing property. Three are uncertain and five are opposed to the prevailing method. Two of the opposing five favor classification of property, taxing revenue producing property higher than homes, for instance.
 One candidate favors the zoning of property, assessing a particular type of home in one section lower than another where realty values are supposed to be higher. Part of the candidates favor employment of an expert to survey the city and make plans for future extensions, playgrounds and parks. One is opposed to employing an "expert" for this purpose, declaring that the city engineer is fully capable of doing it while another "doesn't see any use of doing it at all."
 As to recalling public officials, three candidates are opposed to this system, four favor it and three are uncertain. Election of school board members by the people is opposed by seven out of ten candidates.
 Six favor representation of women on the school board equal with men, one had no definite suggestion to offer, one would "vote for the best person whether male or female" and another ignores the question.

WHEAT TARIFF PROBE INTO SECOND STAGE

Washington, November 25.—The tariff commission's wheat tariff inquiry will advance into the second stage tomorrow when its first public hearing will be held. The commission has invited millers, producers and other interested parties to state their cases, and officials declared tonight that a sound constructive view of the pros and cons of appeal by the wheat council of the United States for an increase of 50 per cent in the present wage duty of 30 cents a bushel.

WOMAN WHO SLASHED NEIGHBOR GIVES UP disorderly conduct were made against both women.

 Sunday Mrs. Jackson's condition grew worse and fears for her life were expressed by physicians. Police headquarters was notified of the change in her condition and ordered Mrs. Schuyler held without bond pending the outcome. Mrs. Schuyler, learning of this Sunday afternoon, walked into police station early Sunday night and surrendered. She is being held in the matron's ward.
 Mrs. Schuyler was accompanied to police headquarters by her husband and Parish C. Burt, lawyer, of the firm of Key, McClelland & McClelland.
 Mrs. Schuyler told officers that she and her sister, Cornelia Brice, were selling Christmas seals Friday night and entered a weiner stand at the corner of South Whitford avenue and Woodbine street. While they were in this place, Mrs. Schuyler said, "Mrs. Jackson paced back and forth two or three times in front of the store. We soon left the store, after selling a few seals, and started home. When about a half block away when Mrs. Jackson stopped us and turned to me and said, 'You've been talking about disorderly conduct were made against both women.'"
 During the 1918 conference held in Atlanta; Rev. J. A. Brooks, a retired minister, died during the 1919 session held here; Rev. H. J. Ellis passed just as the conference of 1921 adjourned; Rev. C. C. Cary was killed just at the close of last year's session held in this city.
 Three members of the conference are absent from this session, on account of illness. They are Rev. A. J. Sears, of Hogsenville; Rev. W. E. Brown, of Macon, and Rev. J. H. Allison, of Fairburn.
 Fill Atlanta Pulpits.
 The north Georgia Methodist conference devoted the day Sunday to worship and rest. Sermons were delivered during the day in many of the Atlanta churches by visiting Methodist ministers. At Wesley Memorial church, the seat of the conference, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, president of the session, preached at the morning hour, and Dr. S. A. Steel at night.
 During the afternoon at Wesley Memorial a memorial service was held in memory of the seven ministers who have died during the year. Memoirs of the following were read: Rev. C. C. Cary, Rev. Olin King, Dr. W. F. Glenn, Rev. H. L. Embury, Rev. C. L. Paillo, Rev. Sanford Leake and Rev. N. A. McCreary.
 Monday is the last day of the 57th annual session of the north Georgia conference. Beginning at 8:30 o'clock, instead of at 9 as heretofore, as authorized by Bishop Darlington, the conference will continue in session until the appointments are read, which will be about 12:30 o'clock, it is expected. It is understood that the new appointments were completed Sunday night and will be read the last thing before final adjournment Monday.
 Only once since the Wesley Memorial church has been built has a larger congregation assembled here for a religious meeting than gathered Sunday morning to hear Bishop Darlington's discourse. In 1918, during the general conference when Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels spoke, a larger audience was present than of Sunday. In 1918 every available place in the entire building was occupied, and the people filled the vestibule and reached out onto the streets. Two thousand people stood throughout the entire service at that time.
 Three Floors Filled.
 On Sunday morning the three floors of Wesley Memorial church were completely filled, with every seat in the choir loft occupied and many people sitting in the aisles.
 An old-time Methodist love feast preceded the sermon of Bishop Darlington. Rev. S. B. England was in charge of the love feast, in which bread and water were passed and partaken of by all present as symbolic of the presence of brotherly love in the hearts. Old-time songs were sung, and scores of persons arose to bear testimony of their faith.
 As the love feast progressed more and more interesting became the situation, until a fervent spirit of love and joy filled the souls of those present. At the psychological moment, Mrs. Annie B. Cuyler, of Cartersville, arose to give her testimony, which she did in song. Mrs. Cuyler sang the song, "In the Good Old Fashioned Way," as her testimony. While she sang the conference body was moved to heights of holy rapture, and numbers of persons were emboldened to exclaim aloud their delight.
 Music during the regular service was conducted by Mrs. C. Bostman, with Mrs. Boatman at the huge pipe organ.
 Among the hundreds of prominent laymen present was Governor Clifford Walker, who occupied a seat on the rostrum, and who took part in the service. Other laymen were observed from towns as far away as West Point, Dalton, Toccoa, Augusta and Macon.
 In his sermon Bishop Darlington declared a tremendous battle in America is to come regarding the Bible, and stated that the greatest danger will arise in the effort to corrupt the worship and faith of American people. The bishop was referring to the plans followed by Jerusalem as he sought to win the Israelites from the worship of Jehovah. Jerusalem set out to accomplish that end by trying to corrupt the worship of the people, and destroy their faith.
 When worship is corrupted then it follows that faith also becomes of no value. S. A. Steel then, would be a heart without vital faith in a living God, and with no inspiration to clarify him.
 The bishop urged that the mistake made by the unnamed prophet should not be repeated by ministers today. The prophet turned aside from the command of God, and listened to another who enticed him to tarry and eat and rest. His disobedience brought upon him loss of power and standing, and also lost for him entrance into the sepulcher of his fathers.
 In every sense, ever in communication with Him and ever obedient to divine voice, the world admires and wants this kind of preachers, and will listen to such. He pictured the final reward that shall come to the faithful man who stands in the peace that come from the consciousness of having faithfully performed their duties.
 A. Steel delivered the sermon of the evening at Wesley Memorial church. He used as his theme, "The Significance of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ." The memorial service of the afternoon suggested the theme.
 Resurrection is Proof.
 Dr. Steel argued that the resurrection of Jesus proved the truthfulness of his religion, before which the numerous religions of antiquity paled into insignificance. Also, he stated, the resurrection established clearly the divinity of Jesus. The disciples and others have been prone to admit him a man among men, but the resurrection proved him divine.
 The resurrection of Jesus is proof of our resurrection, said Dr. Steel. The fact that Jesus arose from the grave, conqueror of death, and gave promise to his believers that as he rises so shall they rise, evidences the facts of truth as he gave them to men. In conclusion Dr. Steel suggested that the resurrection of Jesus was the pattern of our resurrection, Christ being the first fruits of the resurrection and passing on into perfect spiritual life, the promise is made to believers that they also shall come forth and ascend even as He did and ever be with him.
 Dr. Steel held the body to be resurrected will have the same form as this, perfected and spiritualized. He judges there will be recognition in the spiritual world as did the Hebrew prophets, declaring them to be men of God, great ethical teachers with messages of national import. They were men of lofty tax proposal of the treasury has been thrashed out many times in congress and in committees during the past eight years and has not thus far been adopted on account of republican opposition and the extreme difficulty of its successful administration. All members, however, have favored it in principle from the beginning. Not only the three administration amendments recommended by the treasury but many others equally, if not more, important, should be dealt with by congress.

 As to proposed reductions of normal taxes, any other view than that everybody everywhere favors such reductions is worse than absurd.
 Internal revenue statutes are necessary for the reason of our complicated economic conditions, which bear no relation to the single problem of scientific equitable taxation.
 In order that the revenue and financial record may be kept straight with respect to the course of the two political parties since the war, let it be remembered that during the eighteen months prior to March 4, 1921, the democratic administration reduced the public debt virtually $2,500,000,000 while the subsequent republican administration during the two and one-half years from March 4, 1921, increased the debt around $2,000,000,000.
 Democratic Course Certain.
 Pointing out that it was too early to formulate any detailed party program for the coming session, Mr. Garrett said "it was safe to say that the democrats in congress will at every stage and upon every important question pursue a sound constructive course and at all times maintain the integrity of well-established democratic principles and policies."
 "Not a word of the kind of mere temporary partisan advantage," he added "tempt the democratic membership to play cheap or mean politics at the expense of the people as did the republicans during 1919 and 1920. They will instead work wholeheartedly with members of the opposite faith, whether of the standard or progressive factions, with the sole object of promoting the public good."
 "The public should not be confused or misled by the many conflicting and reckless predictions as to the course and attitude of democrats during the coming session, or by public statements purporting to forecast our party program. Democrats must insist on formulating that program for themselves, as they will do in due time."

WHO SLEW LEHMAN IS DOUBLE PUZZLE

 Rockwell and Miss Beck for murder.
 Then, as all hands were preparing for trial Otto Malm was arrested following considerable shooting and after spending several hours confessing various robberies and burglaries, he branched out in confession of the Lehman murder as well. He declared that his wife was the woman in the case, and a pal, also in custody, has admitted to the police that he drove the Malm's away from the scene of the murder.
 The police, who are now hunting Mrs. Malm, claim to believe Malm's story, partly because:
 Malm described the murder with a wealth of detail which they know to be true.
 They can not figure out any motive for Malm to confess the crime if he did not commit it.
 Rockwellman has continued to deny any connection with the shooting.
 Ethel Beck has been insisting on her reputation of her confession.
 Malm is known as a crook who specializes in acts of robbery interrupted by Lehman before he was killed.
 The physician to whom Malm claims he and his wife were driven that morning so that Mrs. Malm's wound might be attended, corroborates Malm's story that the trio came to him and that he refused to treat Mrs. Malm without first calling the police.

Both Cases Clear.

Hence police now have two clear cases against two separate couples. They must decide whether to have the indictments against Rockwellman and Miss Beck quashed and secure new ones against Mrs. Malm, or to disregard the stories of Malm and Rockwellman and the renewed denials of the girl couple.
 In company with the state's attorney's office, they are frankly up in the air.
 Rockwellman's attorney will seek to force their hand Monday when he appears in court to demand his client's release.

Monroe Doctrine Centenary Will Be Huge Celebration

Washington, November 25.—Plans have been completed for the celebration at Richmond, Va., December 2, 3 and 4, of the international centenary of the proclamation of the Monroe doctrine, under the auspices of the Southern Commercial congress.

Governor Trinkle has issued a proclamation setting apart the days designated and has named 1,000 commissions to delegates to represent Virginia. In addition, the plans call for the issuing of 100 commissions each by the governors of other states. Patriotic and civic organizations from all parts of the country also are expected to participate, and a number of diplomats are on the program to deliver addresses.

To Visit Grave.

The program calls for the opening of the celebration by memorial services in the churches of Virginia on Sunday, December 2, and a pilgrimage by troops, patriotic organizations and others to Hollywood cemetery, Richmond, where Monroe is buried. Floral tributes will be placed on the grave. A mass memorial ceremony will be held in the evening with William J. Bryan and Governor Trinkle as speakers. Dr. C. J. Owen, president of the congress, will preside.

On December 3 the descendants of President Monroe will be presented, and former Governor William A. McCorkle, of West Virginia, is scheduled to speak on the personal genesis of the Monroe doctrine. Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia; Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, of William and Mary college, where Monroe attended school; Dr. H. L. Smith, president of Washington and Lee university, and others are expected to speak at the morning exercises. In the evening visiting diplomats will talk, among them Ricardo J. Alfaro, minister of Panama, who will discuss "The Monroe Doctrine and Latin America." Mirza Hussein Eban Alai, who will talk on "The Monroe Doctrine and the Balkans," and M. Tammados, Greek chargé.

Governor Trinkle will tender a reception at the executive mansion.

Education Day.

Tuesday the education division considering the "continuity of progress and development of the century under the Monroe doctrine" will hear addresses by many persons prominent in public life. Included in the program of speakers is Oliver J. Sands, of Durham, N. C.; G. W. Koser, commissioner of agriculture, of Virginia; Representative Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio; Aaron Sapiro, cooperative marketing expert; Harvey Jordan, director of the American Cotton association; Governor Davis, of Kansas; Senator Heflin, of Alabama, and others.

A pilgrimage will be made after the close of the celebration to Charlottesville, where "Ash Lawn," the residence of Monroe, will be visited. President Coolidge, although announcing he would be unable to attend the celebration, has written a letter expressing his gratification that "Richmond and Virginia are taking the lead in a fitting observance of the centenary of the Monroe doctrine."

"As one of the great contributions of American statecraft to the determination of relationships between the new world and the old," President Coolidge wrote, "it has proved a factor of the first importance in a very broad range of international concerns, and well deserves the nationwide attention which your celebration is attracting to it."

Governors Plan Coal Legislation At Parley Today

Harrisburg, Pa., November 25.—Delegates representing the governors of approximately half of the anthracite consuming states will be present tomorrow at the conference called by Governor Pinchot to consider a program of state and federal legislation designed to keep down coal prices. The list of acceptances tonight included representatives of thirteen of the thirty states whose chief executives were invited.

Governor J. A. O. Prews of Minnesota notified Governor Pinchot he would attend in person and probably would be accompanied by one delegate. Other governors who announced they would be represented by delegates include the governors of Maine, Wisconsin, Ohio, Vermont, Maryland, Connecticut, Virginia, Delaware, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York.

The conference is scheduled to open in the afternoon at Governor Pinchot's office in the capitol. Governor Pinchot will open the discussion with an address which is expected to outline his program.

NEGROES CHARGED WITH THREATENING YOUNG MAN JAILED

Daniel Ball, 226 Smith street, and Robert Jones, 223 South McDaniel street, two negroes who are alleged to have threatened the life of Arthur Guthrie, young white man, at the corner of Butler and McDaniel streets, Sunday, will answer several charges in police court today.

The two negroes, policemen report, were drunk and accosted young Guthrie without saying a word, threatening him with a long knife. Guthrie reported the matter to police headquarters and Officers J. M. McDaniel and M. D. Cartwright went to the scene and found the negroes standing on the corner where the incident occurred. At the approach of officers Ball fled. Officer McDaniel giving chase. Jones was detained by Officer Cartwright.

Ball fled up Decatur street in the direction of the viaduct with Policeman McDaniel closely behind. When it seemed that he was outdistancing the officer, the latter commanded him to stop and shot once in the direction of the fleeing negro. When the negro reached the viaduct he sought to hide behind one of the supporting posts. As the officer approached the negro menaced him with a long knife, but McDaniel, closing in steadily, the negro a heavy blow across the head with his fist, wrenched the knife from his hands and carried him to police headquarters.

EGG "BOOTLEGGERS" Berlin Must Pay 15 Cents Each to Profiteers.

Berlin, November 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—"Bootleggers" have gained control of the egg supply of Berlin. A government decree says eggs must be retailed at 35 gold marks each, but the order everywhere is being disregarded and the "bootleggers" are demanding from 12 to 15 cents per egg and are getting it.

Much butter, which with eggs comes from the Baltic states and Sweden, Denmark and Holland, also is being distributed by the "bootleggers" who demand payment in foreign currencies for all their produce.

In these days of high prices even sausages, of which the Germans eat a lot, are nearly as expensive as beef and pork. Sausages retail at from one dollar to one dollar and a half per 12 ounce pound.

All frequenters of public dance halls hereafter must aid in feeding the city's poor. A jazz tax for charity has come effective tonight. The tax also applies to the high life cafes and cabarets which are patronized chiefly by profiteers and their acquaintances.

Suspect Seized In Holdup Killing Of Bank Carrier

Cleveland, O., November 25.—A man booked as Barlow M. Diamond, 27, Brooklyn manufacturer, said to be wanted in connection with the slaying of William S. Barlow, messenger, and William H. McLoughlin, assistant teller of the West End bank, Brooklyn, during a hold-up last week, was arrested here tonight.

Diamond was said to have been identified as one of the two men who robbed Barlow and McLoughlin of $43,600 after shooting them in an elevated railway station in Brooklyn November 14. He admitted his identity, the police say, but denied all connection with the crime.

The man does not remember where he was on November 14, he told detectives, but said he was in New York a week later. He was arrested in the lobby of a downtown hotel after being traced here from Philadelphia.

Diamond said he came here to buy lumber for his wood working factory. He had $2,100 in currency when arrested. He was taken east tonight.

POLICE CLAIM TALLY OF FINGERPRINTS.

New York, November 25.—Through finger prints made in blood on the windshield and tornout of the death car, police believed tonight that in the arrest in Cleveland of Barlow M. Diamond they had succeeded in tracing one of the bandits who shot and killed two bank messengers in a Brooklyn subway station ten days ago and escaped with $43,600 in cash.

Police did not say whether the fingerprints they have on file of an ex-convict, Barlow M. Diamond, tallied with the marks on the automobile, or that fingerprints of the man arrested in Cleveland matched either set they now have. But they inferred that the telltale marks in two of the instances were identical.

The automobile used by the bandits was found abandoned after the crime. In checking the name given as license, Samuel Joseph, the detectives found that the building in which "Joseph" claimed residence belonged to Diamond's mother, Mrs. Dora Diamond.

Diamond was traced to Philadelphia where he registered under the name of Schwartz, and then to Cleveland, back to Baltimore and Washington, where the trail was lost until he was next heard of in Cleveland.

Mrs. Diamond said her son is a widower, and father of a five-year-old son. One of her four daughters, Elizabeth, ridiculed the associating of her brother with the crime. Diamond is salesman, she said, for the Diamond Wood company, manufacturers of boxes.

Diamond was taken to Buffalo to await the possibility of his fighting extradition, it was learned later.

Detectives first traced Diamond to Philadelphia, where he is said to have entertained a chorus girl lavishly. He is said to have boasted to her that he was a "stick-up" man and just made a big haul.

From Philadelphia he went to Baltimore, where he again entertained lavishly, then to Washington and arrived here Friday, the detectives said.

ALBERT LED SCIPES AND SLUTS A CHASE.

New York, November 25.—Secret service men and newspaper reporters who tried to keep track of the intricate activities of Heinrich Albert, New York representative of the "Central Purchasing Company" in the days before America entered the war, did not think that the man suspected as an espionage chief would one day be named to head the cabinet of a German republic.

Dr. Albert, picked by President Ebert to form a new government, was well known in New York in those days. Coming here in 1915, he opened offices for his company. In reality these offices were the center of German propaganda activity. Albert was in close touch with the German military and naval attaches, Von Papen and Boy-Ed.

The propaganda was at first directed toward influencing favorable opinion in the press. Albert advanced part of the money which Dr. Edward Rumely and his associates used in buying the New York Evening Mail. This fact was brought out when Rumely was convicted of having concealed from the alien custodian the fact that German money had been used in buying the newspaper.

Later Albert's staff was said to have been involved in the direct espionage system by which spies were placed in labor unions, tab kept on munition manufacture and shipments, and attempts made to buy up and destroy chemical and munition plants.

REPARATIONS BODY IS ALMOST "BROKE."

Paris, November 25.—The disappearance of the reparations commission through lack of funds to keep it alive is forecast as a possibility by The Matin. The newspaper says that the German government, which under the treaty of Versailles must defray the cost of all the commissions created by the treaty, carried out its obligations scrupulously until last July, but that since then reminders from the commission with regard to its duties have brought no replies from Germany.

The commission, says The Matin, therefore has been using its reserve funds.

The newspaper places the fund at 25,000,000 francs, without explaining its origin and says only sufficient of it remains to provide for the essential needs of the commission until the end of January. Then by sacrificing an important portion of its personnel, the existence of the commission might be prolonged two or three months more.

BELGIAN ULTIMATUM TIME LIMIT ENDS.

Brussels, November 25.—The time limit fixed by the Belgian government, in which Germany must pay 1,250,000 francs as indemnity for the assassination of Lieutenant Graf, in the neighborhood of Dusseldorf, expired tonight and nothing has been heard from Berlin beyond an offer to submit the question to The Hague tribunal for arbitration. This proposal has already been declined by Belgium.

The latest note forwarded to Berlin carried the ultimatum that Belgium would confiscate the amount of the occupied territories in the event of the failure of the reich to pay.

Gets Scholarship.

New York, November 25.—Dredley H. South, a graduate of Rice institute, Houston, Texas, has been awarded the Columbia university scholarship in electrical engineering.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

A courageous program

In only five of the past seventeen years have we paid the full 5% dividend on the $60,000,000 Southern Railway preferred stock. The average annual payment to the shareholders has been only 2 3/4%. No dividends have been paid on the $120,000,000 common stock.

But in this long period of lean returns for the 16,000 owners, many millions of dollars of earnings have been expended for additions, betterments and improvements.

Since the organization of the company in 1894, the total amount of income thus invested in the upbuilding of the properties has been $124,500,000. Two-thirds of these expenditures have been made in the past decade. These large capital expenditures made out of earnings have increased the capacity of the Southern to serve the South without increasing our fixed charges.

The strength of the Southern Railway System today, as an efficient public servant, is the result of the courageous carrying out of this program of aggressive development of its facilities by an organization bred in the traditions of the South to understand its problems and to foresee its transportation needs.

THE LA FOLLETTE SCHOOL.

Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, has announced that he will be a candidate for the presidency in 1924, it matters not who may run.

This means another "third party" —or perhaps what is known in the northwest as the "Farmer-Labor party," which is in truth a misnomer, for it is a group of radical politicians and their followers, a majority of whom are neither farmers nor laborers in the sense of skilled workmen, but alien and hyphenated radicals.

La Follette will not be able to become a factor in the regular republicans machine in 1924, although for nearly three years he has tried unceasingly to find a foot-hold through a course of insolvency that has had no greater effect so far than irritation.

At any rate there are several

"third party" groups at work, and the Wisconsin senator, and his bunch of senatorial lieutenants perhaps figure on combining them all,

if such a thing is possible.

It is hardly possible, however, for making third parties to be a political industry out of which several people make their living, and others become addicted like the drug fiend for the narcotic.

The third parties are a rather futile lot, but they appear very serious and much obsessed with their importance as they pass long resolutions appealing to the proletariat.

Their conferences are generally wordy debauches, and after they are over there is a quick flash in the frying pan and in a few weeks they fade out of the national picture.

La Follette, of course, is the brains and the most resourceful schemer of all the third-party groups, and while his activities in national elections are almost negligible in their effect, it must not be overlooked that, as a member of the senate, backed up by a half dozen other radical senators of his own school, his influence is not negligible.

And there is where the greatest danger rests.

In the 68th senate this group of radicals will hold a balance of power on account of the close vote between the regulars of the two manor parties.

Hence, the place to watch for La

Follette's influence is in the congress of the United States, in blocking constructive legislation or in trading in destructive legislation, if such a program is not nailed in its ineptness.

An illustration of the dangerous trend of La Follette's mind is his last proposal to curb the supreme court of the United States.

tageous position that a balance of power holds, that demands the closest watch upon La Follette and his allies in the United States senate. As a third party candidate for president—bosh!

FOR TAX REVISION.

As the members of congress gather in Washington for the sixty-eighth session opinion is crystallizing apparently behind the plan of Secretary Mellon to reduce, through congressional authority, the tax burdens of the country by approximately $325,000,000.

It is indeed now suggested by the proponents of the soldier bonus bill that was vetoed by President Harding—calling for an expenditure of $80,000,000 the first year—that the tax cut can be made without sacrificing or even jeopardizing that measure, and the suggestion is being strengthened by treasury officials.

Since there is a decided split among the house republicans over the organization, all factions sparing, of course, for political advantage, it is not probable that any definite line of action as to revenue revision, in caucus or out of it, will be decided upon until the smoke of factional battle has subsided.

One thing stands out, however, with especial prominence and that is that congress will approach tax revision cautiously and without precipitate action, but that it will approach it, nevertheless, despite the views of politicians who would make party expediency paramount to the material welfare of all the people.

The bonus fight promises to be one of the ghosts of congress. Strong opposition is developing to it in the senate—even stronger than heretofore—and yet on the eve of a national election, it is probable that the advocates of the bonus hold the advantage.

BETTER MARKET TONE.

Dispatches from Wall street say that big banking interests have been in the stock market and have taken large blocks of leading issues.

This is a significant item of news and one that lays good basis for the belief that the stock market is approaching a cycle of sustained high prices.

Also, in the last few days there has been increased evidence of a better tone in the market in the number of dividends, both regular and extra that have been declared.

When bankers, and particularly big bankers, go into the market for stocks for the evident purpose of holding these issues for further advances, there is good reason to believe that a definite upward trend is expected, for bankers, as a rule, are good judges of business conditions. Furthermore, the majority of them are conservative; some ultra-conservative, and very few big risks are taken.

Coupled with the interests of the banking industry in the stock market is the general increase in the amount of public buying, which class of investors has gradually, in the last few weeks, come into the market.

Promise of legislative action that will bring lower taxes is doing a great deal to bring new buyers into the market, and it is believed generally in financial circles that should lower levies come, a great deal of capital now tied up in tax-exempt securities would be loosed.

TARIFF "ELASTICITY."

The announcement is made that the federal tariff commission has ordered a formal investigation of the wheat duties under the flexible tariff law.

The board has been struggling recently with buttons and sixteen or twenty other minor matters, and of course there is a greater thrill in the more interesting topic of wheat, but when it comes to "investigating" the American people will not soon forget with what degree of success the board wrestled a few months ago with the sugar duties against which millions of housewives stormed the capital with protests.

The "elasticity" of the republican tariff law in the case of sugar has been compared to the elasticity of a brick wall.

The findings of the board as to sugar, after the leisurely held hearings covering a period of several months, may be given to the public sometime about March 3, 1925, provided the democrats win next year's elections; and if they do not then 1929 will perhaps be a more nearly approximate date.

Anybody knows that the present high duty in wheat has not been of the smallest aid to the American producer. America is a large exporter of wheat, and the big duty only serves to make the loaf of bread cost more to the consumer, and the producer gets less than cost of production at the same time.

And the proposition is to increase the duty—which means to increase the price of the same price, and the same old prices to the farmers who grow an export commodity.

It seems that Germany is short of everything except ammunition.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, November 25.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up and merrily merrily, my night dream cries aroused the neighbors and the worst nightmare ever!

So to breakfast with Gil Boag and frolicked with his dog awhile. This day I walked across the beam of a skyscraper on a dare and only Providence did not break my foolish neck. Albeit I shudder at the thought of this interruption and that, done with fair grace and then to Howard's, where we fell to reading some Kin Hubbard books and fairly rocked with mirth.

To Dr. George Dorsey's in the evening. He is a man of letters, C. P. Williams, William Johnston, Clara Briggs, Ewing Galloway and others, and much rag-tag and bobtail and there to see the Music Box Revue and afterward made plans for a long journey to Texas and the interior of Mexico. So to bed.

There was, by the way, no trouble in seeing the influence of the literary log rollers in the debut of Robert B. Heister, the debutante critic as a professional actor in the Music Box Revue. Mr. Heister is a versatile young man—a keen critic and a brilliant contributor to magazine and plays, and he was splendid in his new role as an actor. But he was not the whole show by a long shot. There were many other skilled and capable performers who were as good and in many instances better than he. Yet Mr. Heister was hailed as "stop-time" by the show. The accolade came from those of his fellows in the so-called round table group at the Algonquin. This is not only discouraging, but unfair to men and women who have given their best years to theatrical work.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

LOVE.

Text: John 3:16, "God so loved the world."

There is infinite variety in love.

Time cannot wither our custom stale its infinite variety.

It is always new and always original.

This is true because love is at once the most creative and the most recreative force in the universe.

Indeed, the central fires of creation are the fires of love, to love the Creator is Love.

The lesson of life is to love, to love and evermore to love.

Whatever is contrary to love is slow dying or is death.

Love is pure, holy, righteous, white as marble, radiant as a flame, love endures forever.

Until we have learned the lesson of universal and disinterested love we have not lived; we are only waiting for life.

Better European News Aids Business, Finance

New York, November 25.—(By Associated Press)—Strong rallies in the markets, declaration of numerous new or increased dividends and encouraging industrial news have featured the past week in business and finance.

Sharp recoveries in foreign exchange on the evening of a break between France and England were the more spectacular events. Sterling rallied about 15 cents and was raised to 125, while the dollar advanced to 24 1/2 cents. The general impression was that the preceding decline had been greatly overdone and had been due both to speculative selling for the decline and to the deferring of buying by importers. When the turn came these interests showed great eagerness to cover their requirements.

The better turn in the foreign situation and the accompanying rally in the exchanges had its effect on the other markets. Short lines which had been extended on the stock exchange toward the close of the previous week were withdrawn and even wheat improved moderately. In the market for the later commodity, however, responsive buying was sufficiently strong to hold the gain, speculative interest in the commodity being small.

Cotton meanwhile continued its advance and reached new high prices for the crop. The government ginning report, which was published on Wednesday, was not quite as bullish as had been anticipated, but nevertheless was interpreted as indicating that the total yield will be materially below 10,000,000 bales. In the opinion of most observers this makes some curtailment of mill operations inevitable.

A number of increased and extra dividends contributed to the week's higher stock market prices. So did the recovery in foreign exchange. Another favorable factor was the statement of the Federal Reserve bank, which was made on Wednesday. Compared with the previous week, there was a slight falling off.

Other favorable news accounting for this week's rally included the fact that the stock exchange, with more different issues being traded in than in many months and with prices advancing, included this week's report of The Iron Age that the buying movement in pig iron was the largest since last March, a further indication in crude oil production, with some grades of crude oil actually being advanced in price, the first advance since the long period of price-cutting began months ago; the decision reached at the conference between the Federal Reserve board and its advisory council that general trade was on the mend and that there should be no reduction at this time in the rediscount rates, as had been proposed by some bankers as a stimulant to business; some very favorable statements of October railway earnings; the prediction made by George A. Baker that we will have continued prosperity well into the summer; and that investors in railway securities will recover a substantial part of the $3,000,000,000 which has been lost in stock market values during the past 15 years.

The Southern Kleen-Heat company, Southeastern distributor for the Kleen-Heat system, is finding itself unusually busy just now installing its heating systems in many residences throughout this entire section. The company installs automatic oil burning systems, and though established a little less than a year, it has built up quite a reputation not only in Atlanta but in many other southern cities, on its work.

The officers of the company are W. E. Ottinger, manager; and R. P. Weems, local sales manager. The territory covered being the entire southern section of Georgia, the company is represented by the O'Pry Heating & Plumbing company, in Macon; and the Walker Plumbing & Heating company, in Columbus, Ga., as western Georgia distributors.

The Kleen-Heat system is listed as standard by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and it is declared that it approaches mechanical perfection. The trade name declares that "no labor—no cost—no ashes" make Kleen-Heat the ideal heater for the home. In speaking of the desirability of this particular style of heat, one of the officers of the southeastern distributing company said:

"The operation of Kleen-Heat is decidedly simple. In fact, it has been developed to such a degree that its entire operation is automatic. With Kleen-Heat once installed your furnace does the work. It operates unfailingly; it produces a constant flow of clean heat whenever you want it, maintaining an even temperature any time during the day or night. It is easily installed, your present heating plant having to be neither disturbed nor dismantled."

Driving automobiles and trucks has grown to be such an easy thing with thousands of people that it no more matters particularly whether one owns a car or truck or not, for he or she can always find one at some up-to-date house where cars of all kinds are rented for the purpose.

One of the most dependable and best known concerns of this kind in Atlanta is the U-Drive-It Inc. of America, located at 19 James street. This concern began business in April, 1923, but it has grown so well in its service to the public that within a short time, perhaps not later than December 15th, it will move to larger and more spacious quarters at 18 East Ellis street. A fuller announcement on the removal will be made at a later date.

C. E. Bickers, general manager, declares that in the new place they will be even better equipped to serve the public than in the past. First-class equipment only will be offered to the public, and drivers will have the assurance that every car and truck brought into the place, after being used, is gone over by expert mechanics, who are always on hand, so that the equipment brought there remains absolutely perfect. Satisfied customers who appreciate courteous treatment, and who also know that reliability is one of the strong features of concern of this kind, are being made by the hundreds by this concern.

The U-Drive-It Inc. of America, operates about 40 passenger cars, of all types and many types of trucks, which make it convenient to secure either a car or truck at any hour of the day or night. In the new location the concern will also have space for storage of 60 to 75 private cars, and in addition new equipment will be added for the rental department.

H. G. Van Zandt has been appointed by Mr. Bickers as general night manager, and is assisted by a staff of efficient automobile men, and the public is invited to call for service any time a car or truck is needed.

the necessity of, and makes it possible for them to know just how good furniture should be taken care of. As a consequence they employ only responsible men on every job in order to see that goods reach their warehouses in perfect safety and good condition. The company makes no extra charges for hauling to and from the warehouse, and with rates declared to be reasonable in the city is building up a large clientele.

The Candler warehouse, which is used by them, is one of the largest and finest warehouses in the south. It is declared to be fireproof, dust-proof and rat-proof, and an extra precaution is equipped with a modern sprinkling system. The officials of the company declare that business at present is unusually good and are looking forward to the coming twelve months to be the busiest they have ever enjoyed.

before the end of the crop year. With the futures in the neighborhood of 35 1-2 cents, considerable profit-taking naturally appeared. This was absorbed, however, and the trade remained bullish.

Considerable attention was given to developments in the pig iron market. The extensive inquiries of the week before developed into the largest buying movement since the early spring. Orders for over 600,000 tons were placed and since prices have declined far enough to be below the cost of production for a large proportion of the merchant furnaces, it was felt that the market had reached a turn.

No similar buying movement developed in steel products and activity in this branch of the industry was on a slightly smaller scale. Prices, however, remained firm and producers showed confidence in their position, being encouraged by reports of good prospects in the building industry, by expectations of renewed buying by the railroads by continued optimism among the automobile manufacturers. Rail mills were reported to be fully booked for the middle of next year.

Confirmation of the theory that money will remain easy was found in the weekly bank statements. A further material reduction in the rediscounts of the Federal Reserve system was attended by another decrease in reserve note circulations. Continued gold imports and the recent flow of funds from Europe were considered to be partly responsible and it was pointed out that the circulation of gold certificates is decreasing the demand for Federal Reserve notes.

ALABAMA STILL HOLDS TITLE

George Robinson Works Out Before Large Crowd

Colored Boston Fighter Here for Tiger Flowers Fight on Tuesday Night

Atlanta has had its first peek at George Robinson, the Boston middleweight tar babr.

And Atlanta, or that portion in attendance at the workout Sunday in Miller's gymnasium, is convinced that Tiger Flowers Tuesday night is in for a merry battle for 12 rounds to save his skin.

Robinson, a short, stocky individual, with a terrific kick, practiced on a set of proteges of Billy Hooper Sunday, and he looked the part of a great fighter. He seems unusually clever, packing a murderous right-hand, and plenty of experience back of him.

Truly, if Flowers registers a victory over him, he will be right in line for some splendid bouts in the east.

Has Good Record.

The conqueror of Panama Joe Gans, Johnny Wilson, Joe Ragan, Frankie Carbone, Lee Anderson, John Lester Johnson, Cleve Hawkins and Jack McCarron is a man worthy of testing the skill of any fighter in the land. Dempsey included.

He looks tough, spry, and inasmuch as he has had experience against left-handed fighters such as Flowers, the latter may find himself on the short end of the decision or stretched out upon the mat if he is not in rare form.

Robinson says he will weigh 165 Tuesday, which is the limit set by Walker Miller. Flowers, too, must be under that mark. This he should do handsily.

For 12 rounds these two sturdy black battles will entertain the fightgoers of Atlanta, unless a knockout suddenly terminates the hostilities which is not deemed unlikely.

From what Robinson showed Sunday he is capable of felling any man with whose jaw he connects.

Advance Sale Heavy.

Promoter Miller Sunday night repeated his earlier statement that he is highly satisfied with things. The advance sale is reported unusually large, both principals are on hand and ready, and the preliminaries are all set and waiting for the gong.

A grand total of 40 rounds will be staged, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Two 10-rounders and one eight will precede the chief attraction.

Ladies with or without escorts are cordially invited to attend the muss absolutely free of charge, and walk in without enough heat to keep every one comfortable.

Clemson Is Out To Beat Furman

Clemson College, November 24.—(Special.)—That "Beat Furman" placard that Coach Loyal wore away on his automobile as he journeyed from the Clemson game last Saturday bids fair to have a bearing on the outcome of the Thanksgiving classic between Clemson and Furman in Greenville next Thursday.

The sign is seen at every turn at Clemson—on doors, automobiles, hats, coats, baby carriages, flower pots, etc., with the result that the Tiger spirit is running high. The Tigers realize that they have the hardest battle ahead that has ever been their pleasure to enter, and they know too that Furman has one of the best teams in the south, but they are going into that struggle with the determination of upsetting the dope bucket, and those who know the spirit of the team believe that they have an even chance of doing that very thing.

It is certain now that Gilley Dotterer will guide the team. He has about recovered from the ankle sprain that has kept him on the sidelines since the V. P. I. contest. Dotterer is regarded as the most likely all-star quarter. His presence in the lineup not only inspires the players, but also adds to the driving power of the team. He is good at passing, running, dodging and hitting the line. With Dotterer at quarter, Clemson stock has had a boost. Every regular will be in the lineup against the Purple Hurricane and every man is likely to be in tip-top condition.

Coaches Saunders and May will display every bit of football strategy in their repertoire in the Thanksgiving game. That the Saunders shift will be used to some extent is certain, but the coaches will spring plays that have not yet been exhibited by the Tigers. The coaches are bending every effort to present to the lovers of football as smooth running an eleven as has been seen in many a day. Clemson's fast backfield, composed of Dotterer, Loyal, Harmon, and Williams, is showing marked improvement over past performances.

The fact that the Tigers could score on the powerful Centre team shows that they have the drive, and the Clemson line is well equipped. If the air route should be tried, Fink and Garrison will pull down their share of the passes. Wertz, counted the best center in the state, will be playing his last game and he will not doubt eclipse his past brilliant work.

DATE FOR BOWLING TOURNAMENT IS FIXED

Detroit, Mich., November 25.—The annual Elks' National Bowling association tournament will be held at Lima, Ohio, starting February 2 and continuing ten days, it was announced today by Secretary J. A. Galen of the Elks' Temple, Detroit. Entries for the tournament will close at midnight, January 5.

According to Galen more than 500 teams, the largest number in the history of the tournament, are expected to file their entry.

AUTO RACES ON CARD FOR SAVANNAH FANS

Savannah, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—In addition to the big local football game between Benedictine college and Savannah High, there will be other attractions in the sporting line for Savannah on Turkey day, including a good card of automobile and motorcycle races on the dirt track at the Tri-State Exposition grounds.

YALE HOLDS BIG THREE TITLE

New York, November 24.—There was rejoicing today wherever sons of Elihu Yale were gathered, the cause being Yale's 13 to 0 triumph over Harvard yesterday afternoon. It was Yale's first victory over the Crimson in five years; it developed the first Yale touchdown scored in the Harvard stadium in 16 years, and it won for the Elis a place as leader, if not the leader of eastern college football for the season of 1923.

Just now Cornell and West Virginia share with Yale the distinction of being undefeated, but both Cornell and West Virginia have yet to face powerful rivals, and there is the possibility the one or both, in their Thanksgiving day games, may fall a notch below the Yale team.

Jupiter Pluvius was an important factor in the Yale triumph. He coasted the Harvard stadium field with a thick layer of mud, and covered the ball with the same slippery substance, which caused Harvard to commit more errors in Saturday's contest than it has committed in its long football history. Yale turned three of these errors into points, scoring a touchdown on a recovered fumble; a field goal on another recovered fumble, and another field goal on a recovered blocked punt.

This was the Elis won, 13 to 0, despite their failure to make but one first down in the entire game. Combined with the effective work of J. Pluvius, however, was a display of Yale alertness and an ability to take full advantage of Harvard errors. Harvard had the advantage in kicking and gaining somewhat of a ground in rushing from scrimmage. But Harvard players made costly mistakes at critical times and were not so alert in following the ball as their Blue-jerseyed rivals.

Breaks Played Big Part.

Similar weather conditions to those at the Harvard stadium prevailed at the Polo grounds, where the Army and Navy staged their annual battle, and on other eastern gridirons. And with few exceptions, the breaks were the chief factors in producing scores.

In the Army-Navy game and in the Boston College-Vermont contest, the breaks were less numerous and more important, and scores less were the result. No more bitterly-fought game has featured Army-Navy history than that of yesterday. Up and down the field the battle waged with first one team and then the other showing a slight advantage, but neither was able to turn such fleeting favor into points. Each attempted a field goal, these attempts being the only serious threats to score.

Army showed to a decided advantage in the kicking department and was able to send its punts into the end zone, but in the fourth period, it blocked Syracuse Navy punts only to see the Middies recover the ball, once on the Navy's yard stripe, and again only two yards from the Middle goal line.

The east and middle west split even in the inter-sectional features of the day, when the 7 to 0 Syracuse victory over Nebraska was counterbalanced by Notre Dame's 26 to 0 win over Carnegie Tech.

Many Entries In Cross-Country

New York, November 25.—With a record field of 319 runners from 27 eastern colleges and universities, the intercollegiate cross-country championship race will be held tomorrow morning at the Cortland park. The race will be one of the most interesting in hill and dale annals. It will be the fifteenth annual contest, held by the I. C. A. A. A., and the twenty-fourth in all since 1890.

Besides the varsity event, over a six-mile course, a freestyle race of three miles will be held, with another record entry of 201 runners from 18 institutions.

Syracuse, last year's winner, will be among the favorites for the team title, but its hopes have been dimmed by injuries to Captain Keating and Otis, Dartmouth, with a well-balanced combination that defeated Cornell, Columbia and Penn in a recent quadrangle meet, and Yale, will be formidable contenders.

The individual Little promises to center around Verne Root, Johns Hopkins star and intercollegiate champion; Ed Kirby, of Cornell; Elmer McLane, of Penn; Howard Dykeman, of Carnegie Tech, and Arthur A. Friess, of I. T. T. Root's most important victory this season was in the recent middle states championship run.

Coast League To Modify Draft

Chicago, November 25.—The Pacific Coast league has not yet taken any action regarding the draft, Fred E. Rivers, president of the Portland club, said today.

The impression has gone out, Mr. Rivers said, "that the Pacific Coast league has voted to go back to the subject up and do something definite at our next gathering."

Talk in baseball circles is to the effect that the Pacific Coast league, the American association and probably the International league would make an arrangement with the majors similar to that prevailing in the Western league, which receives players from the majors subject to recall to arbitrarily draft a player.

HAVANA RACE SEASON TO START TURKEY DAY

Havana, November 25.—Havana's racing season will open at Oriental Park Thanksgiving day. The program calls for at least one hundred days of racing, with six events daily and one additional event on Saturdays and Sundays. A large number of American horses have been shipped to Havana and many of them are having daily workouts.

Several changes have been made in the management of the Cuba-American Jockey club, which controls the track. Thomas Monahan is president this year; Frank J. Bruen, manager, and George W. Grant, formerly of the Boston Braves, treasurer.

A PIP FOR THE PAPER

By PAUL WARWICK

Feel a Speech Coming On.

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, you dear little children down on the front row, smiling so innocently and so sweetly—all of you—it gives me great pleasure to stand before you as I do this morning, looking into your upturned faces. I can truthfully say that I have never addressed a gathering, the manhood of which was so upstanding, the womanhood so beautiful, nor the childhood so alluring in their precious attractiveness.

I am reminded of the story about the two Irishmen, Pat and Mike. Pat and Mike were walking down the road one day and Pat said to Mike, "Mike, how far is it to Dublin?" Mike, not to be outdone, replied, "I'll bite, Pat, how far is it?" (Laughter.)

Now that we've all had our little fun, let's get down to the serious thought which I am here to bring you this morning.

SOMETHING TO WAIT FOR.

This is a great week in our lives. For there are not many more hours before all of us will get our tickets together, put on our overcoats, arrange our hip pockets so that the sandwich won't bulge and go out to Grand field to await the great moment when Tech and Auburn bring themselves at each other in their annual battle. All the men and women, boys and girls, will be there, to say nothing of the revenue officers who have promised faithfully to be on hand.

It's going to be a sad day for many of us, who will see for the first time the furious charging of Johnny McIntyre, the last determined dumping of interference by good old John Station, the last upright and defiant charge of Clarence Ely, the pivotal bulwark of that Tornado line—all of these things will be hard to look upon.

THE STANDS ARE READY.

There'll be a great old gang on hand to view the jousting, to sit in on the most romantic and colorful moments the autumn affords this Atlanta town.

Yale will be a titanic scene for the death of the football season. No glorious conqueror could choose a more resplendent scene for his demise. Thanksgiving day was long ago chosen as a day for great gridiron accomplishments, but the game has grown so rapidly that the game makes the date, not the date the game. Football may have at one time meant Thanksgiving, but now Thanksgiving means football.

And the pretty part of it, ladies and gentlemen, is that no matter what the outcome, it's a glorious occasion.

THE GAME ITSELF.

Tech, my children, is figured better than Auburn in many quarters, according to comparative dope, that fickle quantity, that wrecker of hopes and despoiler of wallets. Since Georgia beat Auburn 6 to 0, and since Alabama beat Georgia, 36 to 0, and since Tech and Alabama tied with Tech having the offensive edge—Old Man Dope says "If betting, you're safe to give Auburn and 36 points, or maybe 42."

Ushers, stop the Auburn—I didn't mean that as an offer. But you in the audience know that Auburn perpetually rises to the heights in these turkey day games, and you know likewise that our good Techies are suffering from the wages imposed by a colossal schedule. So it is bound to be a game that will match its gala trappings.

We'll be there. Thank you, one and all.

MANY FIGHTS FOR BANTAMS AND FEATHERS THIS WINTER

New York, November 25.—As business declines in the larger classes of the ring, the pressure on the bantamweight and featherweight champions becomes heavier day by day. Both will have to turn their attention to urgent business in defense of their titles this winter. In the classes above the featherweight there are few fighters who could by any stretch of the imagination be called stars, and the young crop of cauliflower in these divisions is generally scrubby and unattractive.

However, the young bantams and feathers have been extremely busy and some of them have begun to stand out as unusually good fighters. The bantamweight crop of the last year has brought along Cannonball Eddie Martin, Carl Duane, Ansell, and Frankie Jerome and Harry Gordon in the east, and an immature boy named Bud Taylor who was rushed too fast in the rings around Chicago and has been temporarily retired.

The featherweights who have developed to the extent that they may now be regarded as rightful challengers are Johnny Dundee, of Duluth, Minn.; Sammy Mandell, of Rockford, Ill.; Harry Wagner, of Philadelphia, and Cuddy de Marco, of Pittsburgh.

In the lightweight class, Frankie Genaro remains the runner-up to Pancho Villa, who has made several tentative engagements to fight him. The next prospect is Al Pettinelli, of New Orleans, who has made half a dozen false starts for New York, but has never yet set foot on Broadway.

Cannonball Eddie Martin, the bantam, has won 37 fights, including about 15 knockouts. He has done most of his work among the giving crop of young bantams and is only now being pointed at the head of the old regime, such as Carl Tremaine and Joe Greer. Pancho Villa, Duane has a record somewhat similar to Martin's, but Duane is caught fast and last to the champion to scale below 125 pounds for a fight with Jerome.

Jerome Kid Has Good Record.

Jerome Kid has been in the business over two years and has made some great fights, but may have fought himself out by now, as he has not appeared at his best in some of his recent scraps. Harry Gordon is a rough-house bantam whose record is starred by one great fight in which he hammered Tremaine for 12 rounds last summer, to the great surprise of the bantam who regarded him as a 3 to 1 article.

Bell is a colored boxer, formerly an amateur. He announced himself among the leaders of the giving crop of young bantams and is only now being pointed at the head of the old regime, such as Carl Tremaine and Joe Greer. Pancho Villa, Duane has a record somewhat similar to Martin's, but Duane is caught fast and last to the champion to scale below 125 pounds for a fight with Jerome.

MICHIGAN IN TIE WITH ILLINOIS

BY JAMES MCCLAIN.

Chicago, November 25.—For three periods the hopes of Illinois rooters sank steadily on Saturday—visions of an undefeated season and Big Ten honors were nearly wiped away by the stone wall presented by the Ohio State line. Then "Red" Grange came through again. In the last minutes of play the fleet-footed back skinned across the field for a touchdown; Britton added a field goal shortly afterward.

Hopes fell at Ann Arbor, for at the last minute it looked as if the popular dope that Michigan's season would be wrecked on the last shot—the Minnesota defense—was to prove true. Then Rockwell, the little substitute quarter whose touchdown beat Wisconsin a week before, flashed over the goal line. Later, also, Captain Kipke added a field goal.

This strange similarity in victory landed the Illinois and the Wolverines in a tie for the Big Ten championship. The better team will remain a matter of speculation as long as post mortems on the 1923 football season are held by the fire-side, Illinois, a plugging team with one bright star—Grange, who scored a dozen touchdowns for his first year's work—might seem to be the greater, however, due, of course, to this one shining spot. Comparative scores reveal nothing, Illinois won five games, defeating the same four that Michigan beat, and also Northwestern. Victory over the Evanston Purple is no great feat, for Northwestern rests at the roots of the sea, with four victories and one defeat. The Maroons were better than the Badgers, but not seven points better. Luck helped good football.

Has Three Victories.

Minnesota's defeat at the hands of Michigan gave the Gophers a record of three wins, one defeat and a tie for fourth position. Iowa won three and lost two; Indiana split two and two. Wisconsin, Ohio State and Purdue each won one and lost three, trying for the home of finishing just above Northwestern.

In the east-west tilt the day was evenly divided. The fight Irish did more than they expected when Carnegie Tech was added to Notre Dame's string of scalp by the one-sided score of 26 to 0, but Nebraska did not fare so well, while host to Syracuse. Although they couldn't score, the Cornhuskers had everything their own way up to the very close of the game. Then Syracuse cut with in the shadow of the goal by taking to the air, and scored a touchdown which gave the conqueror of Notre Dame their first beating of the year.

It was quite a feather for the Syracuse camp.

Again California finished the season undefeated champion of the west.

Tremaine and Villa To Fight

New York, November 25.—Carl Tremaine, known as a "great front-runner" among the bantamweights of the day, will toy with a human hand-stand in the Garden ring next Friday night.

He will meet Pancho Villa, busy little saddle-colored Filipino, who holds the flyweight championship. No one title will be involved, as Tremaine has none to lose, and the weight will be above the limit for Villa's flyweight banlie.

Tremaine, when winning, is one of the best of all bantamweights. But it has been noticed in his eastern fights that if he receives a clip on the chin early in the game he falls behind the pace and loses. Consequently, Villa will rush out with a determination to clip him on the chin and clip him first.

Villa frequently fights better against larger men than against boys of his own tiny size. Fast bantamweights seem sluggish against the brown slugger and his swings shoot out from cover with the speed of a frog's tongue.

MEETING OF CAGE OFFICIALS SLATED

The school for basketball officials promoted by Central "Y" will hold its next session on Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Central "Y" gym. The following are requested to appear: Geo. Greer, Pancho Villa, G. C. Sapp, John Bader, H. F. Holt, Dad Amos, Harold Fallon, Bryson, Lawson, Smith, Blair, Wilson, Mundorf and Mahery.

From this school officials for the Sunday School leagues, City league and Y. M. C. A. games will be selected.

Game With Florida 'Gators On Turkey Day To Decide Conference Title Issue

The Crimson Tide of Alabama sweeps along at the high water level in the southern conference football race, with but one game between it and a claim for the conference title as a result of its defeat yesterday of Georgia. The 36-0 score gave the Crimson its fourth victory and the Bulldogs their second defeat.

Washington and Lee found its treatment at the hands of the Centre Colonels much like that administered to other southern foes by the Kentuckians. The Generals lost 19-0 with Covington and Lemon causing their undoing with two touchdowns and two field goals.

Maryland had an easy time with Catholic university, winning 40-6, while Furman's Hurricane ran up 63-0 to Erskine's none. North Carolina State fell before Wake Forest 14-0 and Hampden-Sydney easily defeated Randolph-Mason 28-0. Trinity won from Newberry 20-14 and Michigan won a point from Emory and Henry 7-0.

The Olechopre Petrels held Centre College even in a period when the Gentlemen put over 14 points to win. The Petrels were blanked.

Carson G. Newman surprised Mercer and won 12-0 at Birmingham South. The soldiers of Fort Benning defeated the Paris Island marines 14-0.

Tulane Found L. S. U. Easy.

Tulane found fulfillment of its hopes an easy matter in defeating Louisiana State university, 20-0, at New Orleans in their annual classic. It was the Greenies' last contest and won them a 300 rating in five games, and a claim for the conference title as a result of its defeat yesterday of Georgia. The 36-0 score gave the Crimson its fourth victory and the Bulldogs their second defeat.

Maryland had an easy time with Catholic university, winning 40-6, while Furman's Hurricane ran up 63-0 to Erskine's none. North Carolina State fell before Wake Forest 14-0 and Hampden-Sydney easily defeated Randolph-Mason 28-0. Trinity won from Newberry 20-14 and Michigan won a point from Emory and Henry 7-0.

The Olechopre Petrels held Centre College even in a period when the Gentlemen put over 14 points to win. The Petrels were blanked.

Carson G. Newman surprised Mercer and won 12-0 at Birmingham South. The soldiers of Fort Benning defeated the Paris Island marines 14-0.

Tulane found fulfillment of its hopes an easy matter in defeating Louisiana State university, 20-0, at New Orleans in their annual classic. It was the Greenies' last contest and won them a 300 rating in five games, and a claim for the conference title as a result of its defeat yesterday of Georgia. Beauty Chats

BY EDNA KENT FORBES

Few women over 40 years of age have a good chin line, in fact, few women of 30 possess a really smooth, firm line running from the chin to the throat. Yet it is possible to keep this feature youthful well into middle age.

If you are too stout, so that a pocket of flesh forms under the skin and gives you that dreaded double chin appearance, the thing to do is to diet until you are the proper weight, and to massage away this unnecessary flesh. As you reduce some of this flesh will naturally be absorbed into the system; if you are fortunate all of it will be absorbed; but a vigorous massage will always help. The flesh, however, will be stretched and must be treated with strappings, otherwise it will hang in loose folds.

Chin strapping is a comparatively easy way of keeping this line young. The face, neck and particularly the chin should be massaged with a good flesh-building cream. Long strips of muslin or gauze should then be rolled round the chin and over the head, spreading out fan shape over the head so they will be held firmly. The bandage should be tight enough to strap up all this loose skin, but not tight enough to interfere with your breathing. It acts on the very much as a corset does on the abdomen, it holds back and holds up the sagging muscles and prevents further spreading and stretching, and while it is not always desirable to use a brace, still it is a good thing to use at night and also to take exercises to strengthen these muscles.

These chin-stretching exercises are often given here. Bend the head backwards with the mouth open as far as it will go and slowly close the mouth. Open and close a dozen or more times. Rolling the head round the shoulders is also beneficial.

Trendy A.—Clip closely, but do not shave the stray hairs that look so untidy at the back of the neck when the hair is bobbed. Shaving will make the hair grow out coarser, and therefore become more conspicuous.

Betty B.—I will be glad to mail you the information for improving the lashes and brows, but there is not space here to print it at this time.

Marie.—The exercise from rolling the eyeballs around a circle in each direction, as well as that of turning them from side to side and up and down, will be found very strengthening to the sight; but I do not think it will make the eyes any larger.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in this column in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

JANE HEDDEN HAT PATTERN

EDITORIAL.

With the great popularity of fur coats and large fur collars on cloth comes the need of a very different type of hat.

A small hat is the only comfortable kind to wear with the high collar; but it must be not only a small hat, but one that has practically no back. Any brim must be so narrow that it cannot possibly knock against the collar.

These new winter models are tiny cloches, turbans and small up-turned brims. Their colors range from dull fur shades with gold and metal, to soft rose, beauty, jade and bittersweet. Any girl who it at all ambitions makes her own hat for wear with furs. A bit of brocade, a touch of metal lace and bright velvet or satin are all that are needed. Our patterns give you all directions.

No. S-737.

Satin brocaded in metal forms the entire top of this smart cloche. The original model is of white and silver with a soft wide fold of maline on the edge and a black satin facing. A spray of handsome metal flowers finishes the fold and forms the only trimming. When rich materials are used and the design is good, extra trimmings only detract from the hat. The shape is one which is almost universally becoming. A transparent edge always gives flattering softness to the lines of the face.

Material Required.

One soft pressed crown, 1 cap lining, 1-2 yard elastic net or buckram, 3 yards black wire, 1-2 yards 36-inch brocade, 1-8 yard maline, a 14-inch square of plain taffeta or satin for the facing.

No. S-716.

Model No. S-716 is one which any woman will delight in making. A soft crown is loosely draped with satin folds which are caught down with clusters of handmade grapes. The design is so simple that any girl can make it and so sophisticated in appearance that every one will be delighted to own it. Satin, gros de laundrie, metal cloth or crepe may be used to make it.

Material Required.

One cap lining, 1 soft pressed crown, 3 yards black wire, 1-2 yard 36-inch faille, 1-4 yard velvet for leaves, 1-8 yard metal cloth, metal thread.

No. S-735.

The coronet of this quaint turban is laid in an irregular fold to form an irregular line which is very becoming. The embroidery is of all over cutouts which are connected with a solid honeycomb design of metal threads. This gives opportunity for unusual color combinations. Only tapestry blues, jade and orange embroidery with gold threads on brown satin make a handsome hat for wear with a seal coat. Gros de laundrie or child on silver cloth is one of the more dainty combinations.

Material Required.

One soft pressed crown, 1 cap lining, 4 yards black wire, 3-8 yard elastic net or willow, 1-2 yard 36-inch satin or silk, embroidery or brocade, tinsel thread.

No. 2282.

For the school girl and debutants.

design No. 2282 gives a most satisfactory design. Two fabrics in the same color may be combined to make the soft crushed sports model. Narrow ribbon forms loops in buttonhole effect to finish the line of buttons across brim and crown. Broadcloth, satin, jersey and moire silk are a few of the most satisfactory fabrics that may be used. The effect obtained varies with the material used. White flannel and white satin buttons make a smart skating hat. Blue satin and black bone buttons make the design suitable for smart street wear. A crown or headsize band is the only frame needed. Any seamstress can complete the hat and make it nicely in two hours.

Material Required.

One pressed soft crown, 2 dozen buttons, 1 5-8 yards 18-inch material or 3-4 yard 36-inch material, 1 cap lining.

No. S-731.

Very smart and effective in the black satin tailleur shown in drawing S-731. The back is very narrow, the front flares out and up to make background for the block design of satin folds. Any girl who enjoys plying her needle will be thrilled at the result of a few hours' work with pattern and material. The idea is equally effective when worked out in brown, navy or beige satin. The feather is a circle ornament made of glycerined peacock feathers in black.

an envelope toward her and addressed it. Then she gathered up the scattered sheets on her desk, folded them, slipped them into the envelope, said, and stamped it.

"I wonder if I could trouble you to drop these letters in the box for me when you go?" she asked.

"Ann nodded.

"You don't look quite fit, Barbara. Aren't you sleeping well?"

"Not very."

Barbara's head rested wearily on her hand. Her fingers toyed with a small round pasteboard box that lay on the desk. She seemed curiously remote, detached, as if she brought her thoughts back to her guest with difficulty.

Ann, who had long since guessed the secret of Barbara's attachment to Duane Farley, had the uncomfortable feeling that Barbara might be planning some momentous step. If Farley had not been so honorable, she might have feared an elopement. Stephen Lane was driving her to the wall of late.

"I must be off," Ann arose briskly. "Get some people coming in for tea. Would you care to come down?"

"Thank you—I'm afraid I'm not up to it today," Barbara forced a smile. There was real anxiety in Ann's searching glance. Her eye fell on the little pasteboard box in Barbara's restless fingers.

"Sleeping powders?" she hazarded.

Barbara handed over the box, and Ann looked at the prescription.

"Hm! Rather a dangerous drug. How many do you take?"

"One—sometimes two, when I am very wakeful."

"Be careful you don't over-dose," Barbara smiled faintly.

"So Dr. Grant warned me."

"You need rest and change," declared Ann. "Why don't you go away somewhere?"

Barbara nodded.

"I think, perhaps, I shall."

"Better go up to see Madelon. You'll have the time of your life."

Ann picked up the letters Barbara had requested her to mail and went on her way. She carried away with her a picture of Barbara, lovely, drooping, unhappy, sitting quietly before her desk, weariness in every line of her posture.

She passed Lane in the hall downstairs, and answered his cool, remote greeting with a cheery nod.

On the front steps she met Stephen, Jr., and a nursemaid coming in from an afternoon walk. She stopped and, raising his chubby rosy face, looked down at him with eyes grown soft and wistful.

"Hello, youngster; how goes it?" she asked, controlling her impulse to crush him in her empty arms.

"Master Stephen is very well today, thank you," the nursemaid answered primly for him. "Give Miss Ordway your hand, Master Stephen."

Ann shook the little gloved paw laughingly, and went on to the mailbox, where she stopped to post Barbara's letters. The second one hung for a moment in the slot before it descended into the box. Ann's eyes unconsciously caught the superscription.

It was addressed to Duane Farley. "Poor Barbara!" sighed Ann. "I wonder what the end will be?" (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

Savannah To Secure

Reclamation Meet,

Delegates Believe

Savannah, Ga., November 25.—(Special).—Savannah has the best chance to secure the next reclamation convention, according to delegates from Savannah and Chatham, returning today from the conference at New Orleans.

Those who went from Savannah were Frank M. Oliver, representing the county commissioners; R. L. Cooper, for the mayor and aldermen; Clement S. Ucker, head of the development bureau of the Seaboard Air Line railroad; J. M. Jones and F. L. Carpenter, of that railroad system; H. R. Grimshaw, general superintendent of the S. A. L., and Martineau, M. Hale, of the Southeastern Ports association.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Delicate Lace.

Very delicate lace can be washed without any strain upon it by partly filling a mason jar with water and reliable soapuds, then putting in lace, returning top and shaking. The lace will be cleaned without injury.

To Loosen a Glass Stopper.

Put a few drops of sweet oil around the stopper and place a lighted match close enough to warm the bottle. When quite warm strike the stopper with a stick that is tightly wrapped in a cloth. After a few gentle blows the most obstinate stopper will yield.

Lovely Lamps.

If you have an attractive vase tucked away in the corner almost out of sight, why not have it turned into the base for a lamp, making a silk shade to correspond that will bring out the real beauty of the vase? A reliable electrician will do this for you at small cost.

On First Appearance, Calhoun County Klan Gives Fund to P.-T. A.

Arlington, Ga., November 25.—(Special).—The first public appearance of the Ku Klux Klan in Calhoun county was made Friday night when a band of 24 in full regalia marched into the Morgan high school just before the curtain rose for the first act in a play that was being presented in the auditorium for the benefit of the Morgan Parent-Teacher association. They marched into the building, handed a letter containing $10 to Dr. Hendrym, an officer of the P.-T. A., without saying a word, and stood at the foot of the stage while the letter was read to the audience.

The letter stated that this the Thomas A. Edison Klan, No. 188, inducted into the Parent-Teacher association was doing, and wanted to contribute $10 to the cause. That they stood for separation of church and state, white supremacy and better schools. The letter also stated that this Klan was composed of 110 members from the towns of Arlington, Morgan, Leary and Edison in Calhoun county.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

"I Wonder What the End Will Be."

Life had been going badly for Barbara. If she had hoped for happiness with the coming of her child, she met only bitter disappointment. She had prayed that its tiny baby fingers would open for her the door to Lane's heart, and that, in her selfless devotion to him and his child, she might forget her unhappy love for Duane Farley.

The secret door had swung wide, it is true, but only to admit the child, Stephen Lane, Jr. Before she reached it, it had closed again, leaving her in the same chill darkness outside. Even the companionship of her child was taken from her. Lane had definite ideas on the upbringing of children, which he at once put into execution. Before the baby was a month old, its future had been planned in minute detail to the very day it should issue from a university and take its father's place in the profession which had amused him millions. Its clothes, its food, its waking and sleeping hours, were directed by him. The child's whole life had been absorbed by his dominant purpose.

Again loneliness gripped Barbara's white throat and laid its icy fingers on her heart.

Shortly after her visit to Madelon, found her looking positively ill. She was writing at a desk by the window in her sitting room.

"Don't let me interrupt," observed Ann, nodding to the written pages that strewn the desk. "I dropped in only to see how you were. Go on with your letter."

Barbara laid down her pen.

"It is finished," she said quietly.

Ann paused in the act of drawing off her gloves and looked at her sharply. There was a curious finality in Barbara's tone, out of all proportion to the words she spoke.

"I had a letter from Madelon today," Ann said.

THE WAY OUT BY EMERSON HOUGH

Next Week: "Gold Out of Celebes."
By Capt. A. E. Dingle.

"We don't say nothing about such matters in these hills, stranger," said Joslin quietly. "I'm a-tellin' ye if I went in there with ye, ye'd be all right. But I ain't a-goin'." He kept his eyes on Joslin.

"You're pretty damned independent," rejoined Haddon testily. "The woman was just told me that you're wearing a coat and my shoes right now. You must be hard up against it. Probably you were run out of those hills, and that's why you want to get out. And now I offer you fair pay—good pay, in fact—five dollars a day, or ten—just to go in and show me the timber and coal in that country, which you don't own but we own—and you say you won't go. Is that the way you treat a stranger?"

"Hit might be the way to treat some strangers. As fer yer shoes an' coat, ye needn't say I'm a wearin' 'em no longer." And so, deliberately Joslin removed both the shoes and the coat, and stood coatless and barefooted, leaning against the gallery rail. He felt with a certain mortification the straight gaze of the young woman who had sat listening quietly.

She spoke now.

"Mr. Joslin," she said in the low and even tones usual for her speaking voice. "I think you need those things. I quite understand how you feel about wearing them, but you will oblige me very much by keeping them until you are able to earn something better."

David Joslin, the shame, humiliation and hot anger of his heart struggling for mastery, turned to her, for the moment unable to speak. Then, silently as he had removed the offending articles, he replaced them.

"I thank ye, ma'am," said he. "I reckon ye know better I do what I'd prefer do."

"Well, sir," said she, turning toward him in the twilight, a face that to him had the charm of an angel, "my husband wants you to go back in there with him. Why is it impossible?"

"Hit's impossible, ma'am, because when I make up my mind to a thing it's impossible to change it. She sat looking at him curiously. Never in all her life had she seen a personality more powerful than that of this half wild bearded man who stood before her. The feel of the iron of his coat came upon her with strange effect.

"I'll not ask you why you're going outside," said she, after a moment.

"Just because ye don't ax me, I'll tell ye," said Joslin suddenly. "I'm a-goin' outside to git a education."

"An education? There aren't many schools back in there?"

"There ain't no schools at all, ma'am. My daddy was a preacher afore he died. I kaint read in no book amount to nothin'. I kaint hardly write my own name. I'm a-goin' outside to git a education, because I'm a-goin' to build a college, ma'am."

"A college?"

"Yes, ma'am. I've got to do it. My people have been a-killin' each other in that fer a hundred years. They kaint read, they kaint write, they kaint think. I'm a-goin' to amount to nothin' whatever in the world. They're worth savin'. Well, it kind of come to me, in a sort of a vision, I'd order save 'em. So, like I said, I'm a-goin' outside to git me a education, soon as I kin."

The situation suddenly became extraordinary. They waited for the mountaineer to go on, as presently he did.

"I've never been further down the river than a couple of locks below. I've rafted here since I was fourteen years old, but I haven't got a notion of the hills I don't know nothin' of the world. Kin ye tell me where I kin git my education? I don't reckon I'll take long—us mounting people learn right fast, ma'am, when we git a chance."

Then, after a pause he went on anxiously: "I'd do anything in the world to oblige ye, ma'am—I'd go back in that right now with ye if I had time. But ye see, I'm twenty-eight years old, an' ain't got no time to lose."

Marcia Haddon sat in silence for a time and looked at her husband, who moody and irritated, was flicking at the end of his cigar.

"This is rather an extraordinary thing, Jim," said she. "Do you suppose—is there any way we could help this man?"

"He doesn't seem any too willing to help us," replied Haddon grimly. "I ain't said that, mister," said Joslin evenly. "I'd do anything in the world I could fee ye people if it was right."

Haddon gave a snort of laughter. "You people in here haven't got a thing in the world—we bring in all the money you'll ever see. You've got your resources to sell, and you aren't willing to sell them. Well, what do we owe you?"

"I don't know as we owe ye anything," said David Joslin, the slow color rising to his face. "Fer me, I don't allow to owe any man anything very long. I reckon ye understand that, ma'am."

He turned now to the woman, who nodded. He knew that she did understand.

"Is there anybody else that you can get to take us in?" demanded Haddon impatiently. "Dunno it at all. I've almost a notion to turn around and go back again! For half a cent I'd advise the boys to charge off the whole damn thing to profit and loss. I'm sore—that's what I am."

The low voice of Marcia Haddon began once more, and as before she addressed not her husband, but the young mountain man.

"You spoke about going in at some later time," said she. "You interest me. My husband and I have no children. I'd like to do something—something for those children back there in the hills."

"Ma'am," said David Joslin, his voice trembling. "if ye could do that, God Almighty shore would nudge ferret it, not whiles He had a universe to run. If ye could do that—I'd do anything in the world fer ye."

"Well, now, come," said Haddon, still argumentatively. "You say ye can't know anyone else that you can get to take me in there?"

"I don't, sir. The 'faunts an' the Joslins is both a-ridin' now. There's been men killed an' goin' to be more killed. If any stranger went in there he'd be liable never to come out at all."

AIR-WRITING DISPLAY PLANNED FOR TODAY

Thrills and craning necks are on the menu for Atlantans for the first five days of this week, according to Captain C. R. McMullin, noted English army air pilot and veteran of the late war, who will give two programs of sky-writing daily, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Captain McMullin is appearing in Atlanta as a sky-writer under the auspices of the Skywriting Corporation of America, and promises thrills and plenty for Atlanta's populace each day, beginning Monday morning between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, provided there is a sufficiently large "patch of blue sky." He will take the air shortly after 11 o'clock and, traveling through space at the rate of 100 miles per hour, will write the words "Lucky Strike" against the sky. The exhibition will take place when he is at a height of 5,000 feet, and the letters of the two words will extend across a space of seven miles, sufficiently large even at that great height, to be plainly visible to persons on the more solid terra firma.

The sky-writer will use an S-E type plane, a British model, capable of attaining a speed of 150 miles per hour. This type of plane was used during the world war and was built for speed and climbing purposes.

The smoke used in writing across the sky is generated in the plane at the rate of one-quarter million cubic feet each second, and between 2 and 5 million cubic feet are required for each letter written.

THE CONSTITUTION'S Bible Distribution
COUPON

Two distinct styles of this wonderful Book of Books have been adopted for this great newspaper Bible distribution. One is the far-famed Red Letter Bible (Christ's sayings printed in red for immediate identification), and the Plain Print Bible for those who can spare but a nominal sum.

Presidential Candidate Given Warm Welcome Here

Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, was the guest of honor in Atlanta for the last two days of last week, speaking Friday to the members of the general assembly and Saturday to the regional conference of Democratic women. The three men in the center of the group above, reading from left to right are: Governor Clifford Walker, Senator Underwood and Senator Walter George, of Georgia. The other men are members of the Georgia assembly appointed as a welcoming committee, and the only woman shown is Mrs. Rainey, secretary of the Georgia securities commission.

'Queen Betty Ann's' Army Growing Larger Every Day

And still they come. The army of "Queen Betty Ann" grows larger day by day. Last week-end brought a flock of entrants to The Constitution's great free Christmas doll offer, many of whom stated that they are out to win Christmas presents for "little sisters." Officials of the "Betty Ann" department Sunday urged all persons who wish to win one of these magnificent dolls offered free by The Constitution.

Easy To Win. "If any adult desires to win a splendid Christmas present for the cause of the child, he or she should not delay. Act now, and you are assured that 'Betty Ann' will be in your home in ample time for the holidays.

"Numbers of little people have won dolls in one day's time, and anyone will find it easy to succeed. There is still room for many entries, but our advice is to start at once and strike while the iron is hot.

Over four hundred more "Betty Ann" dolls are on hand and will be given free of charge by The Constitution to any person who enrolls in the offer of the most magnificent doll made by an American manufacturer for only eight new subscriptions of twenty weeks each to The Daily and Sunday Constitution.

All little girls and all relatives of little girls who may desire to win a splendid Christmas present for the child without cost are urged to get into the game at once.

The conditions are easy and the reward is great. "Betty Ann" is two feet high; she is equipped with a complete wardrobe of beautiful clothing; she has real human hair. In addition, she walks, talks and sleeps.

The Constitution was only able to offer "Betty Ann" through a special quantity purchase for she would cost $10 or more at a retail store.

In this issue appears a full page advertisement showing a picture of "Betty Ann" and giving full particulars of the offer.

Turn to it now; read the conditions and instructions carefully. Then fill out your entry blank without a moment's delay.

"Betty Ann" wants to come and live with you.

ONE KILLED, 2 HURT AS AUTO HITS WAGON

Flowers Branch, Ga., November 25. (Special.)—Wallace Waldrop was killed in a head-on collision between his automobile and a team of mules driven by Roy Sanders, and Earl Bagby and Fred Orr, who were with Waldrop, were injured.

It is alleged that the car was being driven without lights as the cause of the accident. The wagon tongue crashing through the windshield broke Waldrop's neck, and the flying glass cut Bagby severely. Orr was only slightly bruised and cut. Sanders was thrown from the wagon but was uninjured. One of his mules was killed and the other had a leg broken.

The accident occurred about three miles from this place at a late hour last night. The dead man lived in Forsyth county. Bagby and Orr were his neighbors. Sanders is a Hall county farmer.
